7. Comments (Optional)

The Complainant's use of the OUTA mark appears to have begun in 2012, seven years prior to registration of the disputed domain name, and the Complainant has enjoyed extensive media exposure under its OUTA mark to the point where it is well-known in South Africa. This establishes common-law trade mark rights in a trade mark identical to the disputed domain name, shifting the burden of proof to the registrant under Regulation 5(c). The registrant has not submitted a response and the matter falls to be decided on the incidence of onus alone. It is however to be noted that the disputed domain name is registered in the <.org.za> country code second-level domain name \(ccSLD\), which according to the Charter is intended for non-commercial use, including for "non-profit companies" and "civil society associations". The Complainant is a non-profit company and civil society association, and the potential for confusion under Regulation 4(1)(b) is obvious.

8. Decision

For all the foregoing reasons, in accordance with Regulation 9(1)(a), the Adjudicator orders that the disputed domain name, <outa.org.za>, be transferred to the Complainant.
